Overview

Organized religion has been looting for thousands of years causing bloodshed everywhere. Atheism didn't offer an alternative, just a rejection. Agnostics give up on the entire process. Blockchain has finally allowed us to create a decentralized religion where we can all connect to our own Gods directly and seek spiritual answers and seek hope in times of trouble. Get some Piety to spare your soul some agony without giving any church, mosque or temple anything in return.

How It Works

Often in life we go through a crisis, and wish there was some magical force out there somewhere to help through dilemmas or difficult times in life. Even if you're atheist such situations are common, and you wish there was a God or source of moral strength you could trust. For most of the believers, this turns out to be organized religion which has immense centralization and leads to some members controlling fates of many and extorting abysmal amounts enriching their personal fortunes. This includes the Papal Church, the Mosques, the Temples of any religion. Such practices have lasted thousands of years and due to lack of decentralized alternatives, individuals have continued to find solace in the flawed models.

Religions often have some of the most notorious and corrupt organizational scandals through human history. Catholicism famously sponsored the Crusades, resulting in the death of tens of thousands of innocent, naïve peasants. More recently, they have been involved in child molestation scandals. The religion of Scientology was famously founded by L. Ron Hubbard to generate income that was untaxable. Corruption will ultimately be prevalent in any organization run by humans. That is why we need to put religion and morality on the blockchain to allow it to exist unabated from human shortcomings.

Now we're offering a decentralized alternative finally where individuals can take control over their own spirituality while still resolving the big questions which surround life, as well as get hope in the process. By owning few units of Piety, you encapsulate the conversations between yourself and your God in a secure manner over the blockchain. No organization controls it, it's just between you and your God. Moreover, you can transact between individuals in a secure manner, to share your wisdom and result of your discussions with God to another individual. Imagine if Buddha had some Piety, he wouldn't need to organize a crowd but should share it with other Piety owners. If recipient likes the message, they can either spread it further spreading harmony or alternately give a token of thanks to the original sender. If many people appreciate a sender's message their supply of Piety increases and they can spend it more to send it to others and spread their message wider. In this way, Piety can serve the needs of evangelism without the needs of any centralized agency. Just love, harmony and peace.

Is This A New Religion?

Not really, but we won't deny it either. However, unlike other religions, there is no central authority. There is a direct connection between an individual and their God as a function of how much Piety they hold. All followers of Piety will be united by their connection to their God, and sharing wisdom but they do it in a peer-to-peer manner without any centralized connection between them, or the need of any idols or messiahs.

How can you value Piety?

Ideally the value of Piety lies in the soul of the owner rather than on the exchanges. However, we understand some Piety owners might want to buy real-life goods from time-to-time and trade their Piety for some other cryptocurrencies. Organized religion is a market in multi-billion dollars. A lot of them are frustrated with their existing religion, and a lot of atheists find no credible alternative. With a safe mechanism to speak to your God, and transact it in few years Piety might overtake Ethereum as the second most valuable cryptocurrency. However, as we said, money can never explain the value of Piety. Its real value lies in spreading wisdom, love and harmony.

How does Piety stop religious violence?

Religious violence is largely a result of centralization of power, who take an opportunity to spread hate rather than love to increase their power and turn religions against each other. Without such a power concentration, there is no individual or group with such power to disseminate hate. Also, as more and more individuals subscribe to Piety leaving their destructive religions behind, the centralized organizers of those religions will be more powerless to execute any more crusades.

I am an atheist, I don't believe in God. Why should I buy some Piety?

You're one of our target customers. Atheists claim to not need God, but everyone needs hope and solace at some time in their life. In these times, there is a certain amount of dejection at organized religion as it's a scam enriching the priests. However, with Piety, you don't need to pay anyone to hold your beliefs and share your wisdom with God. It's all between you and God, and sharing wisdom with other Piety holders.

God is said to exist in many forms and appear when you need help most. All we really want in life is the ability to live a fulfilling and happy existence. We all need support to achieve this, and Piety is going to disrupt the moral support industry.

Ok I am convinced. How can I buy some Piety?
